SECURITY RESEARCH PROGRAM (SRP)

Security Research Program allows companies and organizations to get access to the results of research projects conducted by Security Explorations.

SRP corresponds to commercial security research conducted by Security Explorations. It is reserved to most complex and challenging projects, which are unique in some way.

Who is it for ?

SRP program is for companies and organizations that either:

- want to be in the know with respect to security vulnerabilities, threats and exploitation techniques,
- are dissatisfied with the quality and level of information provided by software vendors related to security vulnerabilities affecting their products,
- would like to support our non-commercial security investigation efforts and their continuous contribution to the public.

This in particular includes companies from technological, financial, energy, telecommunication, military and government sectors.

Deliverables

The results of our research efforts usually have a form of a detailed technical report and are very often accompanied by Proof of Concept Codes.

Research report presents in a detail the cause, exploitation technique and impact of security weaknesses in a given technology or software that was uncovered by Security Explorations during a given research project.

Accompanying source codes can be used to quickly verify the vulnerability status with respect to the technological, software or infrastructure specifics of a given environment.

In some cases, Proof of Concept detection or protection methods are also presented.

Please, visit the SRP section of our website to see most current information with respect to deliverables accompanying a given SRP material.

Pricing

Each material released as part of our SRP program is separately priced. The final price depends on the complexity of the research process and the amount of hours dedicated by Security Explorations to complete it. The impact of discovered vulnerabilities is also taken into account.

The following pricing options are available for research materials released as part of our SRP program:

- SRP EP (exclusive purchase)
This option is for customers that would like to become exclusive owners of a given research material. Upon exclusive purchase and an acquisition of intellectual property rights, a given research material becomes a property of a customer and is not available as part of SRP program any more (no further sales to other parties nor disclosure is possible by Security Explorations).
- SRP AO (access only)
This option is for customers that would simply like to get access to the results of a given research.

Please, note that SRP materials, which are not acquired on an exclusive basis can be a subject of a publication. In that context, SRP AO corresponds to early access to the results of Security Explorations' research.

Please, visit the SRP section of our website to see current pricing information with respect to the project of your interest.

How to join ?

Joining our SRP program is simple. All we need is a filled and signed SRP Access Request Form and a payment done through direct bank wire transfer. Please, contact us at srp@security-explorations.com for further details.

Prior to delivering the research material, a PGP key would be also required, so that no vulnerability details, tools or POC codes are leaked to the public.

Security Explorations reserves the right to reject access to its SRP program with or without providing any reason.
